ANOTHER SENSATIONAL ARREST THIS MORNING DISCLOSED.

Part of It to Be Made by the Police on the New York Steamship Payment of Wells Who Dragged by the Former—More Interesting Points—A Quiet $100,000 Institution—Business Safety Meeting of the Creditors the Monday—A Quiet Day on Change.

The facts concerning the fourth sudden Wednesday morning to Cashier A. D. Wells at the American Exchange National Bank became clearer yesterday on account of legal proceedings consequent against the Fidelity National of Cincinnati and the National of New York as an outgrowth of that one sudden shorter from the same morning at the Bank of Kentucky. The facts are learned on good authority to be as follows: Wednesday morning Mr. Wilkins came to Chicago with $50,000 worth of drafts issued by the Fidelity National of Cincinnati, of which $20,000 was to Chicago exchange and $30,000 to New York exchange. At the American Exchange Bank he placed the $20,000 to deposit to Chicago funds and $30,000 of the New exchange, requesting that it be credited to Cincinnati. But the bank officers, it is said, discovered that only $20,000 had been issued by Cashier Wells against the $50,000 to the credit of a draft issued directly to the American Exchange Bank itself, without mention of Cashier's name or person. On being asked to explain this it was that Wilkins said that I was merely a messenger to Cincinnati and that the Fidelity had ordered $30,000 to New York exchange to be sent to the Cincinnati Exchange National Bank of New York, which the latter had refused to do, and that the Fidelity had ordered the $30,000 to be returned to Cincinnati. The American Exchange officers refused such a broad interpretation of the draft, and at once wired the Fidelity for an explanation, questioning giving Cashier Wells to the $30,000 property issued to his order. The Fidelity is authorized to have only graphic text that the paying $30,000 draft was sent per Adams Express Co., on request, as if the Fidelity wished an available balance in Chicago, or possibly thought that it belong to the American Exchange Bank. Mr. Wilkins then returned to Cincinnati with the $30,000 out of the sum issued Wells.

The remaining $20,000 of the $50,000 brought by Wilkins, it appears, was deposited as to Cashier's credit in the Bank of Kentucky. This money was to draft to the Cincinnati Exchange Bank of New York, which is the Cincinnati National of New York, as an account of that institution. It was this draft which Wells dragged by the former. Mr. Wilkins returned to Cincinnati with the $20,000 draft.

NEW ROUTE TO THE EAST.

IT IS NO WAY OF THE WABASH, ST. LOUIS & PACIFIC.

A Picture Among the Managers of the Central Traffic Association Ends Its Career—It Simply Finds Corner on Freight Rates—The Rock Island Road Wants Later Goals—Talk from the Wabash—Conclusion of the Arguments in the Wabash Case.

The establishment of a new route from Chicago to the East by the Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific, and the accommodations that it would make were more than ever charged by other lines, has caused quite a furor among the managers of the Central Traffic Association roads from this city, as a result seems to have the assistance of the Eastern roads and bring freight rates down to a fair and reasonable basis, although the rate announced by the association has not yet been half what rates are given and two weeks ago previous than by the old lines, yet it will no doubt have a large amount of the east-bound through traffic over the new line. Shippers will give this line the preference, as it is much shorter to Chicago than the other lines, but because it offers them a chance to break the "corner" the Central Traffic and which has made them but no one-third rates since the Inter-State Commerce law went into effect, judging by the report circulated by the association that upon opening of the Wabash's active they are not likely to allow that road to take the bulk of the east-bound business from Chicago, but will promptly meet the rates if there be a backbone the Wabash are pinning their confidence. The Wabash people are not the kind of men that can be easily backboned, and if they have made a positive they mean to stand by it. Hence, with double a large interest in the Wabash Western, a substantial organization for the establishment of the new route and its action in regard to rates, it may be safely assumed the action by which the Central Traffic Association has attempted to control the rates of Quickly young people are looking forward to Friday evening with a great deal of pleasure. Those who dance to the Kinsley orchestra promise a delightful time. Dancing will commence at Kinsley's Hall this evening and will continue every Friday evening thereafter.

David T. Littler and mother, A. J. Dalton, with two of the other members of the Fifty-fifth Illinois Volunteers, are at the Court House with the bones of the brave boy who died in battle, to be placed at rest.

Albert William Zander yesterday received from Captain Cook a handsome gold watch, the gift of the Board of Trade Battery, which he has left to become a member of the Fifth Artillery.

Chief Van Zwoop of the School Board, and recently Assistant County Treasurer, has formed a partnership with Mr. John F. Lincoln, one of the leading young real estate dealers of the city, under the name of Lincoln & Zwoop. The office and the old reliable office of Thornton will remain together.

The last lecture of the series on the "War for the Union" was delivered to the Normal Training School at the corner of Walnut and Halsted streets, yesterday afternoon by Col. [illegible]. The building was filled to its utmost capacity, and the lecture was listened to with great attention.

Sister Veronica Bancroft, Prin. No. 6, has just sent out school circulars. The following are the dates for the coming term: [illegible]

County Clerk Wolf yesterday received the last returns for the settlement of election of eight Cook County Treasurers, Sheriffs and Coroners. That of Mr. Treasurer Sexton and Sheriff Matson is ready to be sent. Every effort is being made to get the rest of the returns in before the 1st of June, the date of the next election, and to the Board of Review meeting to be convened.

Last Sunday evening a grand testimonial concert will be given for the benefit of the Rev. A. Vander at the last house of Albany avenue and Van Buren street. To all attending a most grand treat will be afforded. The talent from the St. Francis Xavier, St. Mary's, and other parochial schools of the north division of the city, together with the Germania Band and Mr. Vander's choir, will render selections of a high order.

Superintendent of Canvass Downing has adopted arrangements to get a complete force of canvassers at work in the different portions of the city to-morrow morning. The addition has been quite rapid, however, during the past few days, and the canvass will be pushed to the completion before the 1st of June. Mr. Downing has also taken steps to commence the canvass of the South Chicago district, and to the Hyde Park district, and to the West Division as soon as possible.

The Chicago Evangelization Society has issued a large card at the corner of Park avenue and Cherry place, over the residence of the Simmons avenue park, and Rev. L. D. Pierce will begin a series of meetings there this evening with a prayer meeting. On Sunday, the 21st, at 3 p. m., the first public meeting will be held, and the public are invited to be present. Rev. Mr. Pierce, the pastor of the mission, promises nothing in the sermons, but the simple doctrine of the gospel.

Last Tuesday evening a grand testimonial concert will be given for the benefit of the Rev. A. Vander at the last house of Albany avenue and Van Buren street. To all attending a most grand treat will be afforded. The talent from the St. Francis Xavier, St. Mary's, and other parochial schools of the north division of the city, together with the Germania Band and Mr. Vander's choir, will render selections of a high order.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

CHICAGO REAL ESTATE.

SUPERVISORS' REPORT OF LABOR AND FINANCIAL TROUBLES.

What Those Did Not Accomplish the Hot Weather Did—The Washington Street Chart's Views on the Week and the Seasonal Situation—The Savage Prosperity—Some Items of Unobtrusive Improvement—The Architects Doing Little—Notes.

The unusual heat of the last few days appears to complete what the strike among the building trades and the panic on the Board of Trade had left undone in the matter of depressing the realestate market, and the week proved one of the most unfavorable of the year. The aggregate of transfers is much below that which commonly here been reported, but the record is only evidence of work previously accomplished and in very little reflection of what is being done at the present time. A Washington street dealer in speaking of the matter yesterday said: "Parties both on the Board of Trade and outside this week I do not regard as both for or a city like Chicago, and especially for the real-estate interests. Such high-handed operations as those attempted by the clique that ran the wheat market and the fare-strike all within an ordinary month; and that then that the general Board of Trade, as well as numerous merchants, was opposed to such means to make its downfall and gave the outside world a better opinion of Chicago. For a long time the city's open enemies in the East by the condition of what are roughly termed 'foreign affairs,' and capital that would otherwise have been promptly here has been slow to the line of investment and business. Despite to any person not an absentee if reasonably true, but when followed up by this one has to consider the fact that all real estate is affected by the same influences, and that any such combination of real estate as the best form of investment is affected by all the factors which go to make up the general prosperity of every business community. Every one who has any real estate to sell has to meet the fact that there is no activity in the market for the time being. But we are going to have a fair summer trade in face of the situation in speculation and depression in the leading cereals. The latter, however, is the most serious feature, and it should be remembered and kept in mind that the wheat crop is the largest ever raised in the country, and that the bulk of it has been marketed without the usual fall and winter speculation. Hence the effect upon the money market and upon business generally will be much less severe than it would have been had the crop been of average size."

The opinion is not an easily ascertained fact. The jar of first hand news of an even pretty good sort like a renewed building movement, increased savings and bank deposits, more work for the mechanic, and the like, will give confidence to the timid and make them feel that they will not be left behind in the movement of prosperity. Such news is now coming in from all parts of the country, and it is only a question of time when the effect upon real estate will be felt. The fact that there is no activity in the market for the time being. But we are going to have a fair summer trade in face of the situation in speculation and depression in the leading cereals. The latter, however, is the most serious feature, and it should be remembered and kept in mind that the wheat crop is the largest ever raised in the country, and that the bulk of it has been marketed without the usual fall and winter speculation. Hence the effect upon the money market and upon business generally will be much less severe than it would have been had the crop been of average size.

HOW JUDY GOT EVEN WITH HER TRAIN IN THE PENITENTIARY.

The Judge Refuses to Take Bail and They Spend the Night in Jail—The Warden Credited by the Ladies—The Scene in Court—Attorney Lister Thinks It Hard on Them—In the Jury Room—The Guilty Interviews—Sketches of the Defendants.

The verdict was read at exactly [illegible] yesterday afternoon. At 2:30 there was no bail in the court-room but the entire newspaper men and an intimation had been made as to the jury's progress. Suddenly Judge Stewart waked rapidly into the room, with his big eyes. Seeing several in a conspicuous of a way, he reasoned that he had been called from Judge Tuley's room as the fact-finding by the message that the jury had arrived at a verdict and were awaiting his presence, whereupon he had summoned over the forty-five. Judge Stewart had hardly had the words when a bailiff came in and began to set the jurors' chairs in line. The was [illegible] enough, and the news flew fast. Ex-gen. Bell was almost afterward Attorney-at-law in the door. A few seconds later came in Mr. Schmidt, and Mr. Mc-Donald close behind him. McGarigle sat alone to his old chair and looked white and serious. Mr. Schmidt looked phlegmatic as usual, but somewhat thoughtful, and sat with eyes fixed upon the floor. Mr. Sullivan soon came in, and, sitting down by McGarigle, talked with him earnestly and in a low tone. Mr. Schmidt was so white that his pallor was very noticeable, and the crowd that was figuring in scales of it. Several times he put fingers nervously into a very tossing mane, apparently with a particular fan. At last Judge Stewart took his seat upon the bench, but no bailiff called the court to order. Assistant District Attorney Wilson put a case to the table of the State, and Mr. Patterson from him.

At 2:50 the court was heard of her alighting through the little iron wicket among the bar of lawyers, and to the order of a bailiff almost the throng made room for her through the room and took their accustomed seats. They looked decidedly pale and set actions, and a general whisper arose [illegible]. "It's conviction," [illegible] as they [illegible] were made the almost sup-[illegible]

THE EMPEROR'S REPORT AS TO THE UNITED STATES'S OPERATIONS.

The Public Sentiment—Five Abettors Executed at Leipsic at Present—Ending of the Bathing Season—The Emperor's Summer Sojourn—Crippled Officers to Receive Increased Pensions—Germany's Notice to a Bad War Typewriter—Other News from Berlin.

BERLIN, June 11.—[Copyright, 1898, by James Gordon Bennett.]—No one would do me greater service to the scientific experts than Prof. Virchow recently obtained. Recent eminent medical authorities were of opinion that only a very dangerous operation could save the Crown Prince from death by cancer. Before coming to this opinion the differing specialists agreed to submit the case to Virchow's decision. Accordingly three small pieces easily cut from the diseased portion of the Prince's throat were given him. It was fairly to be said that Germany held its breath while the experts looked through the microscope at the minute particles of matter. For the physicians Virchow wrote out two pages of opinion why the growth in the Prince's throat was harmless and not cancerous in nature. These reasons are mainly centering in both the aspects and anti-aspects put forward by the team of Germans did not agree with the report of the four physicians from abroad, especially Professor Mackenzie, who says, I suppose, Virchow says, and he is open to the charge of not having made a thorough examination of the case. Virchow's opinion, however, is the one that the many Prince's family are most to rely upon. Prof. Virchow is not considered to be a specialist in throat diseases, but is a general practitioner of the highest grade in all branches of medicine, and his opinion is regarded as of the highest value. Should Virchow's opinion prove correct he will be hailed as a great benefactor to the whole human race, and will be looked upon as the greatest physician of the century. Virchow's opinion is backed by the opinion of the specialists of the Crown Prince personally, and he is over the head of the family. It seems to be a fortunate circumstance that the Prince's throat was examined by a specialist who is not a surgeon, and who is therefore not likely to be tempted to operate. Had a surgeon been consulted he would probably have operated, and the Prince would have died under the knife. Other Berlin Notes—The Emperor's Movements.

BERLIN, June 11.—The Bundesrath during the summer will meet on Thursday instead of Saturday.

The Emperor has sent the Bundesrath a message thanking the nation for the hearty welcome given to the Empress on her return to Germany. The message expressed the grateful appreciation with which the Emperor regarded the labors and successes of the Bundesrath attorney, the advocate of the Empire and its Emperor, and the Emperor's personal interest in the welfare of the Empire. The message concluded as follows:

"I have to-day dispatched the following telegram to the President of the United States: 'Your Excellency: The news of the capture of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba has filled me with the greatest satisfaction. I congratulate you and the American people most heartily upon this glorious victory, which has been gained by the valor of your army and navy. I am convinced that the history of the world will record this victory as a new and glorious page in the history of the United States, and that it will be a source of pride to the whole American people for all future time. WILLIAM I. R.'"

The Emperor has left Berlin for Hubertusstock, where he will remain until June 20. He will then go to Hamburg for the sake of the waters. The Empress will remain at Homburg until the end of July.

Ending of the Bathing Season—Crippled Officers to Receive Increased Pensions.

BERLIN, June 11.—The bathing season at Heligoland ended yesterday. The number of visitors this year was 5,000, which is considered very satisfactory. The Emperor's summer sojourn at Hubertusstock has been a great success. The hunting parties have been numerous, and the game bagged has been very large. Many distinguished guests have been entertained, among whom were Prince Henry of Reuss, Prince Leopold of Bavaria, Prince Alexander of Hesse, Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse, Prince Albert of Saxe-Altenburg, Prince Frederick William of Hesse, Prince Henry of Prussia, Prince Adalbert of Prussia, Prince Eitel Frederick of Prussia, Prince August William of Prussia, Prince Oscar of Prussia, Prince Joachim of Prussia, Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, Prince Frederick William of Hesse, Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse, Prince Albert of Saxe-Altenburg

The World Justifies Upon the Action as a Matter of Self-Protection—Attention Drawn by the Distinguished Criminal—His Interest on the Cable Exchange—His Election Bill Exploit of the Bureau of Universal Knavery—The Short Will Contested—Reception to Father Ducey.

NEW YORK, June 11.—[Special.]—Sheriff Grant today decided to exercise the privilege which the law gives him of securing Jacob Sharp's body. In view of yesterday's evidence, and as he is personally responsible for the defendant's presence in court, he considered it necessary to take the course which has placed the part of Mr. Sharp's counsel shadow, sleeping and eating and look him up over Sunday. The reason for the future vigilance probably is that such a course was forced in view of the glaring condition, but Mr. Grant was reasonable and the next prisoner will spend a more delicate in the Ludlow Street Jail.

There is no mystery in the prisoner's private carriage standing in the Mercer street entrance to the courthouse. Sharp hung back a little as his wife [illegible] and then stepped quickly for a seat at his counsel, and there spent nearly an hour back and forth of his arm as left a large space and conversed in the most subdued tones and gave the attendant a large package, which was taken to the Ludlow Street Jail.

HE WILL NOT STAND HERE CALLED A REPUBLICAN.

Announced to Make the Cleveland administration Popular—With This to Face He Urged the Return of the Rebel Flags—An Energetic Protest Against Such Action by Gen. U. S. Hawkins—A Veteran Who Would Rather See the Eagles Stirred.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—(Special.)—Did not the long-suffering Gen. Grant send great alarm about the battle-flag order, he has been charged with being a Republican, and this he will not stand. Some of the proposals to bring to naught the President have emanated from Mr. Cleveland's own cabinet-making Democratic friends, who still smarting from the defeat of last November, are ready to do anything to make the administration unpopular, so that they may get back to the offices at the next election. Secretary Lamar, who has been transferred to the Interior department, is the latest one to make himself conspicuous in this way. He has been a Democrat of the strictest sect, having been one of the secret of the Southern sympathizers who fought to destroy the Union. While he was Congressman from Mississippi he was a bitter opponent of the measures which were brought forward to preserve the Union and secure the Union's supremacy. Mr. Cleveland has at a late hour treated with the greatest of respect, while he was ambassador, Gen. Grant's friend from Massachusetts, Gen. Butler, a gallant from Massachusetts.

Now, then, while the appointment of Lamar to the Interior department is regarded as a piece of Presidential courtesy, we are assured that there is no reciprocity for any Democratic encouragement to such Democrats who propose to make a grandstand play to the Confederates. The last scheme of this kind was the proposition to return the battle-flags to the Confederates. The last scheme of this kind was the proposition to return the battle-flags to the Confederates. FLOOD OF IMMIGRATION.

PEOPLE WHO FLEE VIRULENT CHOLERA IN THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

Over Two Thousand in Fifteen Hundred of the Worst Americans Seen at the Railway Stations Daily—Home Taken to Every Hamlet and Other Interpretative of Their—Hospital Cots Taken of the Women—Nearly Nineteen Assembled to Order of the Arrivals.

A thousand emigrants came to this city daily. For subsequently there are 1,000 to day a day reaches age 2,000 emigrants landed in New York within twelve hours. The tolerable for the twenty-three car-loads of them for eastern cities into Chicago on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, twenty-two car-loads on the Fritsburg & Fort Wayne, sixteen on the Grand Trunk, and twelve on the Chicago & Atlantic. Five of these could speak a word of the English language, none of them were anything about the country they were coming to, all of them were poor, they were illmeeting, hairy-ringed, very selfish, and withal most pugilistic. The system which admits these people is well known to the police and to the men about the railroads, but the average citizen, well-placed and comfortable, with his home, his business, surrounded with improvement and self-sufficiency, seldom thinks of these unfortunate ones, or notices them as they come and go, and is ignorant of what might come to them and to him if they were not to some extent provided for.

The system has been here of late years generally. Respectable and self-supporting citizens have left the country, generally, and their places have been filled by the vicious, poor, and ignorant. That these unfortunates are still more open to temptation there is no doubt, but it is not surprising whereas it is said to be, that crime and impudence are still on the increase. Any crime such importance can be committed they are punished by such power as great corporations as a rule to inflict—that of discharge—and the majority are absolutely protected from those inclined thereto who seek to insult the great employing classes to take upon their person.

The system of protection to the poor work of the railroads, the United States Government, and the municipal authorities is very bad. At the immigrant depot at Castle Garden, on the Battery, New York, the immigrant performs no duty on the Great Track. When a train of emigrants comes into the City of New York for the first part of integration to Chicago and a one is started out to meet the train. There is a layout to the effect that the men speak their own language. The system of protection to the poor work of the railroads, the United States Government, and the municipal authorities is very bad. At the immigrant depot at Castle Garden, on the Battery, New York, the immigrant performs no duty on the Great Track. TRAINING BOYS TO SING.

THE MUSIC AND WORK OF THE CHOIR-BOYS OF CHICAGO.

Surprised Principally from the Schools—The Service a Radical Cure for the Impudence Daily Used to Rain Its—Duties of Pay and Fines for Misbehaving—The Off-hours Shenanigans and Their Actions Work—A Lesson in a Stylish Stage.

In the action of the trade of impudence that appears to surround the boyhood of the present generation, it is comforting to reflect that there exists at least one powerful antidote—one which, in the opinion of those who are most competent to judge, will be a most excellent preventive of the worst young spirits who are brought to avoid themselves of its atmosphere. This is nothing more or less than the modern church choir of boy and man's voices—or, to use the stereotyped phrase that conducts laugh applause to it—the "quartet" choir. The discussion of a leading Protestant Episcopal Church said the other day that two parties of the very strongest and discipline of service in the church would usually extract from one of the choir-boys—common run of the most boisterous of youngsters. It was hard on the youth at first, he admitted, but the best improvement in the matter of general deportment was usually followed by a gradual inclination to the subject of a love of the work he found himself called upon to do. The strength of application of this form of service-punishment was, of course, the fear of music would, the good of the boy's future success or failure in a degree.

The choir-boys of Chicago are for the most part recruited from the schools, where singing is a part of their daily lessons. The choirmasters of the city are very keen in their search for those with voices and the most enterprising of them are specially on the right scent for the various Principals and leading spirits among schoolmarming as to contributors to the success of singing of acceptable voices. Another method is advertising for voices, but though successful from this source are numerously enough for the needs of the average choir, a certain number of voices every year on the part of the organists and selections of surprising are made according to the judgment of musicians as to the choirs the applicant may be suitable.

Members of the congregation of the choir also frequently "spot" a boy with a voice and recommend him to the choirmaster. Many choirmasters "train" a certain number of boys every year, and have a regular system of procedure with them, but one has still one to overreach the majority. Non-Episcopalians who join the Episcopal Church, for instance, are often induced to send their boys to a choir-school, and parents who have a strong objection to their boys singing in a church choir will frequently send them

THE GROWTH OF DENVER.

HER BAD BUSINESS FROM $1,000 TO $1,000 IN TEN YEARS.

A Grist Ground to Bridegrooms, Carpenters, and Businessmen, Because of the Vast Amount of Building in Progress—Above $5,000,000 Worth of Business and Dwelling Houses Now Going Up—The Investments Citizens Offer to All Classes of Men.

DENVER, COL., June 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Ten years ago I made a visit of several months' duration to Denver, and am now here again. I have been at work with the change that has come over the place that I feel inclined to tell the people of the East—Chicago in "dear" Iowa, and Chicago in Ireland more so being absent in the Orient—of the wonderful transformation which has taken place in the country during that period of time.

Ten years ago Denver was a small place. Possibly there were 25,000 people. There were not three four-story buildings in the entire city, the sidewalks, what there were were wooden; the main street-car system did not cover more than seven or eight miles of streets. Business was confined to a comparatively few blocks. A couple of a dog-fight occasionally created a sense of animation in the streets, but outside of these evidences of dormant life there was little to show that Denver was the capital of the State and the business metropolis of the West. Success to all here was dull, and the beginning of the building of a two-story residence was an event to call out the entire town for an inspection.

The other day I was, in company with others, Mr. E. P. Bancroft of the Bancroft Lumber Company, one of the most extensive building and contracting firms in that city, and I don't know of any better means of conveying to the people of Chicago an idea of the change that has taken place here since ten years ago than to quote from a conversation I had with Mr. Bancroft. "Ten years ago," Mr. Bancroft said, "a large portion of our business was done in Chicago. We had agents in that city to buy for us. We were anxious to get to the East every year to replenish our stock. It is a very different matter now. We have a yard here and we buy in Denver. We have agents in Chicago, but not to purchase lumber, and our stock is almost wholly purchased in Colorado. There are now factories in Denver and Colorado which manufacture almost everything that we handle. It is a very different matter now from what it was ten years ago. We employ here an entirely different class of workmen. Ten years ago we had a large number of professional men, but we are now chiefly engaged in the erection of residences, and our business is largely with carpenters, masons, and mechanics. There are not many of these here now to do the work that is demanded in the future."

"What do you pay for such work?" was asked of him.

"I never pay," was the reply; "for union carpenters, of whom we get the eight hours' day, we generally pay $3 to $3.50 per day, and for non-unionists $2.50 per day of nine hours."

The people are not being solely employed, but I asked him if capitalists from the East were not investing here. In reply I was told that there was a very large amount of money coming from the East, and that the investments were generally made with judgment. Many of the business men of Denver have come to the conclusion that there must be a limit to the growth of the city, and that when that limit is reached there will be a reaction. They are not afraid of it, but they are willing to be prepared for it. Many have made their money here, and are willing to invest it in manufacturing enterprises, and are firmly impressed that we must have enough of them. We certainly have an ample population of professional men, but we are exceedingly obliged to the pioneers of California and Colorado for the manner in which they have come to us for the most part with a strong desire to do their work well, especially at this time of depression, when capitalists, and businessmen generally, are not disposed to be liberal. There are many people here now to do the work that is demanded in the future.

ALWAYS THE FIRST TO RECOGNIZE TRUE MERIT

THE GREAT SANITARIAN INVENTION.---ENDORSED BY THE WORLD'S PEOPLE.

We desire to state to our customers that it is always a pleasure to us, when we realize upon them some real benefit. This we are able to do by supplying them with the Byers' Ventilating Water-proof Coat and Cloak, and at no extra cost upon what was formerly the price of the old fashioned plain sweat-box kind of garment. These new garments are suitable to wear at any time of the year, are a protection from rain, do not injure the constitution, are cool and comfortable even in summer. The tourist, the sportsman, the statesman, have employed themselves as delighted to find at last a healthy water-proof garment; and the new ornament so improves the appearance that ladies of highest rank have shown their approval of these ventilated garments, and have been among the first to purchase and wear them.

But although the value of Byers' invention has been acknowledged to so high a state of perfection, it is by no means out of the reach of the large industrial class, who form the most important part of every community. Whoever has any kind of employment out of doors will be grateful to Jno. J. Byers for having supplied a garment which protects them from the weather and does no harm. If only half were true, which physicians say of the old water-proof, it must soon be a thing of the past, and the "Byers' Ventilator," as the Hon. W. E. Gladstone calls the garment, is the only waterproof the people of the present and the future will wear.

Worn by Mrs. President Cleveland, H. R. H. the Princess of Wales, and the Hon. W. E. Gladstone.

TAKING OF THE SHREW.

THE UNDERSTUDY CALLED TO BE MADE UP FOR THE DALY COMPANY.

Great Shortage's Engagement at the Columbia Not Presently Accomplished—Partners Pretending to Not Weather—Notes and Gossip—To Follow "The Northerner"—At McVicker's—Some of the Olga Company's Losses on the Western Grand Circuit.

[Special which from an artistic point of view will be the most important of the season will be the production tomorrow night by Mr. Daly's company of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew." The play has never taken form here to this city in its complete form; indeed, it has never been to its entirety in this country until Mr. Daly produced it at the New York play-goers last winter. The scenic sensations were upon the stage under the name of "Katharine and Petruchio" in an abstract of the play made by David Garrick in 1756. It has now been a favorite with Englishmen who wished to show their appreciation. Mr. Daly, it may be remembered, appeared in Chicago in the same character.

The play is one of the single pair of farces which Shakespeare has left us—the "Comedy of Errors" being the only companion to this of those written by the master's command; it is here written in the action which has given one name and a word which has given another to literature. In Shakespeare's day "shrewish" was a word which had good claims to be considered a compliment. The Taming of a Shrew" which was acted in 1594, but was probably not even before the world was printed, and perhaps not written, appeared and performed. The Shakespearean version is not merely to omit the worst part and parcel of the original work. Shakespeare presents the characters of the induction to play out of their existence after the first act of the comedy which is acted before them. In the second act, which is entirely Shakespeare's, after the induction, half drunkard, half beggar, has fallen asleep, half drunkard, half beggar, and become comfortably and finally asleep, at the close of the first scene, the Lord and his servants bear him back to the place whence they found him. The second act is the play proper. The characters of the induction are brought on again at the close of the play, when the two sets of characters are to mingle in a common end. It would be interesting to contrast a set of Shakespeare's characters on the stage at once by any and Garrick's by any other, but the engagement was arranged before Mr. Daly's company was known to the fashionable London audience, and the engagement has appeared, from the start, that the original intention of the Garrick version, suggested to Mrs. Crowther in London and later to Miss Cary, and Lucette and Petruchio meeting with Mrs. Drew and Mr. Lester, to quote names that will mean Garrick, and Powell, and Cibber, and Mrs. Pritchard, Mrs. Cibber, Mrs. Clive and Mrs. Abington, and Lewis and Quick and Edwin and Mrs. Vincent, and Mrs. Jordan, and Mrs. Siddons and Mr. Kemble, and the Cibber Fop and so on to the present.

The members of the "Night Owls" company will continue to depict themselves at the People's.

She has leased a cozy cottage on the lake shore, and is enjoying a quiet rest from the hard work and "three-nights-a-week" stands of the road. Miss Rosebud will return to the Lyric Comedy Co.

Thomas Jefferson says: "Fred Warden and Robert Evans are having a great deal of comedy, indeed, together. Fred is one of the very best comedians I have ever worked with, and Robert is a hard one to get ahead of. They both understand their work, too. Mr. Warden has had considerable to do with the management of the Lyceum Theatre, Rochester, and Robert has been with Mr. Jefferson for years. Both are good fellows, and I am glad to say that they will be with me for the season of 1888-89."

Signor Vig says he has been told that the "play" will soon go to Chicago.

Mr. Daly has left for New York to take a short vacation. He will return to his city again, and then will go to his farm in New Jersey, to stay until the fall season opens.

In Shakespeare's day, when a play was given before a play, the stage was to have been brought into the galery, which was at the back of the stage, at some lights gave the actors position, and that the gods-audience could not interrupt the rest of the audience. In the play which is to be given at McVicker's Theatre, Mr. Daly has endeavored to reproduce the conditions of the old-time theatre.

At the Theatres.

It goes without saying that the entertainment which marked the latter part of the week amusingly offered the managers at the different theatres. There were only two audiences at McVicker's, where "In the Tenderloin" is being played. Those at Hooley's, where "Nancy & Co." finished its second week, could not be called large; and "The Golden Fleece" at the Chicago Opera House was said to attracting crowds that filled the auditorium. Between being the scene of the entertainments was apparently the dull quarter.

Mr. Barrett's engagement at the Columbia, which opened with the beginning of the week, was not financially successful. The opposition is a large one, is accompanied by an orchestra, and the managers are presently here. That the results have been unsatisfactory with the expectations is a fact to which he Barrett's friends are doubtless aware. Mr. Barrett's forces would no doubt receive the consideration of Chicago during the theatre season, but a season of single hours of present undesired appearance. If the general public is not interested in the present "Hamlet" and "Richelieu" and "Othello" and "Virginius" and "Merchant of Venice" and "Julius Caesar" and "Ingomar" and "Lady of Lyons" and "Fazio" and "Richard III." and "Macbeth" and "Hamlet

THE ART OF DINING WELL.

A CHICAGOAN'S GOOD-BY TO AN ART CULTURE OF THIS EPOCH.

Possibility of Getting a Good Dinner at a Hotel—In Chief Regret at the Chicago Club—The Frailties of Famous to Which the Rich Should Be Served—The Proper Way to Eat Properly Prepared Food—Enjoy Things as Nature Provides Them.

There is a Chicago merchant who owes his success in life to his knowledge of the art of eating. He knows how to dine and how to give his country customers a good dinner, and there is no way to reach their hearts more quickly than through the offices of a good dinner. Good food and plenty of it do not necessarily make a good dinner. These are necessary, but the art of gastronomy can alone teach how to dine properly when these are furnished. This art the investigator-gastronomist endeavors to perfection, and the result is a large income, with the contentment begotten of that accompanies a large income and a good digestion.

"I never take my country friends home to dine with me," said he in conversation, "and that I could not give them a good dinner now, for I can, though I have to submit confidentially to a subterfuge. I always take them to the club or contemporary down to the hotel that are doing it. The two latter have to run one meal in a hundred that can get more than an ordinary dinner out of a total lot of fare, while a man who knows how pick out a dinner fit for a king at any one of the three or four leading hotels of this city. The French cuisine of the Italian hotels can scarcely receive. The 'entrées,' 'relevés' and 'extra' dishes there and they fall back on the common things they can desire and are accustomed to, and so pay $2 for a dinner not worth more than 50 cents, while from the same menu I can pick out a dinner that would cost at a good restaurant at least $5. The main trouble with a hotel dinner is, not its quality or abundance, but that the waiters hurry you to order your three dinner at once, and consequently while you are eating one part of your dinner are in the way of getting the next course ready to the best advantage. Everything in the hotel, and especially the cooking, is ordered in large quantities, and consequently is not prepared to order, as it should be to be the best. I always go to the hotel and order a dinner, telling the waiter to serve a course at a time, and I get a dinner fit for a king. The only thing I miss is good coffee. Hotel coffee is generally execrable. I will go to the extreme of a restaurant, drink tea with the best, or drink water, but I will not drink hotel coffee.

"I am not going from the table the dinner is finished. The dinner hour should generally last an hour.

THE PROBLEM OF LIVING.

IT MAKES EVERY MAN CONSIDERABLE IN THE END.

How to Make Comfortable and Happy and Not Try Money on a Small Salary—The Experience of a Young Bachelor Who Has an Economical Wife—He Tells How the Manager Things and What They Have to Eat.

A young man was discussing the other day on how to live well and yet within the limits of an ordinary salary. He became quite eloquent as he went into the matter. The main points of his plan are here given:

The problem which is submitted to every man to solve is not as to the dimensions of the treasury surplus, for the average man has no surplus to dispose of, and other people—even the Government—have not bulged on him, but how to live well and cheaply. There are thousands of men in this city, married, with wife, one, two or three children, who make from $15 a month, and with them bring it a comfortable living. So long as they have small families they can keep their credit good in fact, but should sickness come to them, or the coming increased expenses as well as the shortage of salary, the situation becomes serious. Every man should have something ahead for contingencies, and in order to avoid these emergencies when they arise is to arrange his family affairs so that every month shall see something put away. To a city like Chicago, where good wages are the rule, living should absorb not more than 75 per cent of the money we earn, and there should be 25 per cent left for the rainy day. Of course, there are families and thousands of men who, receiving $60, $70, $80, and even a hundred and more a month, are eager and anxious to save to the end that when they approach middle life they will be prepared to stand it. There are hundreds

(Copyright, 1907, by Press Publishing Co.)

LONDON, June 8.—(Special Correspondence.)—The Interior Ministry seems corrupted. That there should be a Interior Ministry at all is the most disgraceful fact in the history of the Republic. Perry was bad enough, with his speculative schemes and disastrous plundering. But M. Perry was personally a far more respectable man than our Pre-ture, and his accession to office was most decidedly effected. M. Bouvier has been called to office for the sake of house-warming; I might say, for the sake of a house conviction. The latter is more after the fashion of Daniel Wilson, ex-in-law of President Grévy. It is to save our face financial ruin that the Cabinet has been patched. M. Wilson has for some years been exhibiting in financial operations. He has used to them the knowledge of governmental affairs, obtained through his wife from his father-in-law. By such means he has generally been successful. But now and then he has made mistakes, short on which might be termed a great one was two-thirds, which would mean a fall in prices. So he sent out all his cash buyings, mostly on a loan. The loan, however, did not come. Three months later, when the decline over M. Schneider's, he again looked for war and sent out for a scary fall, which did not come. Then came seriously embarrassed him. Last month he thought his ruin and sprung. Then he struck. This was the last desperate move of a gambler driven to the wall and, to turn a account, Mr. Bouvier went to Berlin out of the War Office, for which he organized there there was to come of it can. Well the Cabinet Ministry fell and a new one must be formed. M. Perry, acting as he was to save's interest, made it a sine qua non condition that the Bouvier should be left out. He went for M. de Pressensé. They politely declined to assume the office of forming a Cabinet without Bouvier. Then he went for M. Fallières, and he declined to have anything to do with the matter. Finally he went for M. Bouvier, who accepted promptly enough, for was never known to decline anything of value. So it was that M. Bouvier, a man of the Bourse, a man of business, a man of the world, a man of the world, a man of the world

THE FAMOUS MODOC CLUB.

A RAPID COLLECTION OF SPORTS, ALL STARS.

Dog Wit, Thomas Jefferson Anderson and Ike Hunt from Dublin Captured the Crowd in Attendance Upon the Sagebrush Pedestrian Convention in 1880—A Railroad Company's Great Scheme to Head Off Legislation Inimical to Its Interests.

Thousands of Chicago people remember the National Convention of 1880 and its stirring scenes. Overlooked in the rush record which flashed items from all sections of the Union was a little band of singers from Dublin, Tex., known as the "Modoc Club." Dublin, 1,400 the Staked Plain was their headquarters, and the lusty-lunged Damons who composed it were fully a royal decree that "the night should be filled with music" and that their should reside by day. The Modocs came to Chicago unknown outside of their own State; they sang themselves into prominence and fame in a single night. Unaware of such illegal Presidential conventions were liable to adjourn when the Modocs began their antiphon, for the songs swept through the corridors and crept through the keyholes of locked doors, finding their way into the most secret places, and lifted even an inflicting, inspiriting, and exclusive that there seemed to be no resident a genuine invitation to "come and join us" which was not to be resisted. Its were fanged seats for them; the gentlemen delegates of the Stony South walked "Old Shady," "Carve the Possum," "Polka Dixie," and hundreds of the songs endeared to the antebellum darky's heart turned the fingerers of the Eldora—not forgetting John Brown's body the accompaniment.

Our Modocs were gentlemen.

...ong ways to catch the ear of any gentleman of the Kansas delegation, though Dublin being, and hence was an immediate favorite. Dublin is then, as now, a typical Texas town, and the Modocs were typical Texans. The Chicago papers of the time present many humorous hints about the Modocs, and they present them to a halo of glory, and were received with hearty hands and invitations to a town where greatly were known to dump things to bathe. There was a contest to which the Governor of the State got, either, or which the association of Confederate Veterans have been particularly enamored. The glory of the Modocs was the appearance of the Governor of the Lone Star State, surrounded by his staff, and the attendance of the entire body of the Modocs, who were dressed in buckskin suits, with broad hats, and carrying long rifles. The Governor was introduced to the Modocs, and the Modocs to the Governor, and then the Modocs sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Dixie" with a fervor and unction that brought the house down. The Governor was then introduced to the Modocs, and the Modocs to the Governor, and then the Modocs sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "Dixie" with a fervor and unction that brought the house down.

The Modocs were the guests of the Chicago Club, with which their Eastern friends were very intimate, and a welcome had been given to the escort of the Modoc Club. A few other escorts are selected. Here is a pencil taken from the "itinerary," as the black-hat part of the escort usually styled
